NAA Announces UAA as Recipient of 2008 Brewer Trophy

Arlington, Virginia, July 24, 2009 – The National Aeronautic Association (NAA) announced that the University Aviation Association (UAA) will receive the prestigious Frank G. Brewer Trophy for Aviation Education. The award is presented annually for significant contributions of enduring value to aerospace education in the United States.

For 60 years, UAA has served as the voice of collegiate aviation. The organization has a long record of promoting and supporting collegiate aviation programs; providing educational and professional development opportunities for the faculty and students; offering scholarship opportunities and promoting collegiate aviation through industry organizations. Throughout the aviation industry today you will find industry leaders and other professionals who graduated from many of UAA’s member schools.

The award will be presented at the NAA Fall Awards Banquet on Monday, November 2 at the Crystal Gateway Marriott in Arlington, Virginia. For more information, please visit www.naa.aero.

The National Aeronautic Association is a non-profit, membership organization devoted to fostering America's aerospace leadership and promoting public understanding of the importance of aviation and space flight to the United States.
